For the final project, I am planning on doing the "Haiperku." The idea I had was to take one of my favorite albums and create several haikus that link the songs together to create a story of some kind. This specific album is Fine Line by Harry Styles and I chose five songs that help tell the story of a person reflecting on life, love and loss. In order to capture this, I want to include some of my own illustrations (I'm not sure if I should do them digitally or by hand however) to make it feel more cohesive and also make it more interesting! I also think I will be adding the songs as a soundtrack that is played during each haiku.

I've also included the initial haikus I have done so far. (Also I didn't use any song lyrics, these are all original haikus!)

#1- Golden
she is a pure gold shining brighter than a world overflowed with stars

#2- Falling
the stars fade quickly when mistakes change a person help, what am I now?

#3- Cherry
right now you've moved on but I'm stuck dreaming of us please pick up my call

#4- To Be So Lonely
called you yesterday silence is my only friend will i be happy

#5- Fine Line
happy, a strong word i'm learning to accept that we'll be a fine line

#1 golden
sound - golden by harry styles #2 falling

animate falling stars

#3 cherry

#4 to live so lonely

telephone ringing

#5 fine line

sound - fineline
